THE CONQUERING HEROES.

A thand Reception Given the Secon West India Regiment, Beturned from the Ashantee War.

NEW YORK, May 20 .- A Kingston, Jamaica, letter gives the particulars of a reception of the second West India regi-ment on their return from the Ashantee war. The troops isnded on the after-noon of the eighteenth, amid salves of strillers and general acclamations of cit-izens, of whom there could not have been less than twenty thousand out of doors. The city was gaily decorated, especially the streets forming the line of march to the race-course, where a municipal address was made. Under two triumphal arches the heroes passed amid the waving of handkerchiefs and repeated cheers of all classes of inhabitants. On arriving of all classes of inhalitants. On arriving a: the parade ground the troops were received by the commandant of the station with staff and guard of honor, composed of companies of white troops. On the twenty-fifth the returning regiment, officers and inch, were entertained at a hanquet givest by the citizens. All this honor, the writer says, was accorded, not simply as a recognition of the great not simply as a recognition of the great services rendered by the Second West India, but as a demonstration of the disappointment felt at the studied neglect with which the West India regiments were treated by General Woolsey in his speeches and dispatches.

Yest erday-Liberty of Conscience

COLUMBUS, MISS., May 29.-The subject of absorbing interest in the as-sembly for the past three days has been the question of the rule adopted by the faculty of the seminary at Columbia, South Carolina, requiring the attend-ance of the divinity students upon the preaching at the chapel Sunday morning. This rule was enacted last January, and many of the students felt that it infringed upon their christian liberty, and that they ought to have the privilege of worshiping God on the Lord's day in the Presbyterian church, in Columbia. Seven students were dis-missed, and the others submitted. The subject comes up on a review of the proceedings of the seminary. before the house is, whether or not it shall pass a bill that will break up not only the organization but the spirit of the army. I speak not for the staff department, but for the fighting branch of the army. The staff corps exists because the army exists. This is not a question between regulars and valunteers. It is, however, a question of good faith with men to whom the government has pledged its faith, and said that if they should go into the army and do their duty there they would be kept in the service so long as they were fit for it; and when incapacitated for service the government would not desert them in their old age. THE CIVIL RIGHTS BILL.

Figures and Facts for the Consideration of Endical Politicians in the Accounts given in Washington dis-patches of the passage of the civil rights oill by the senate describe many of the epublican senators who voted for the ill as half-ashamed of what they were sing and as more than half doubtful of the expediency of their action. The votes which were cast against conscience nowever, summed up as roundly in the najority as did those which were east in elf-righteousness; and the question of conscience is a question of no account in the practical results of the senate's Fri-day night's work. As for the expediency of the measure, that is something more tangible than the consciences of Republican senators; and the doubts which many Republican senators felton hat score were fully justified, if, indeed, they were not to some extent inspired by the figures of the ninth census, for the following table made from the ninth census shows that there are only three States in the Union wherein the negroes have a majority, and only two wherein a square division of the races at the polls the negro majority is large enough to be
